HP Managed Supplies Delivery

Streamline and manage printing supply inventories and costs

What if you could...

Receive just-in-time ink and toner, and eliminate the need to maintain stock that ties up capital and wastes real estate?

Reduce administrative costs for order and inventory management?

Lock in ink and toner pricing for a multi-year period?

Facilitate print management decisions with usage data captured via remote monitoring?

Get optimal value and results every time you print by using original HP ink and toner?

Support your organization's green initiatives with easy ink and toner cartridge recycling?

That's alternative thinking about printing.

When your organization is busy taking care of business, it's easy to ignore those low ink and toner warnings and forget to order more in time. When you do run out, it may even be easy to find multiple cartridges stashed around the office—except for the one you need. What's not so easy is tracking your printing supplies needs, inventories and costs, and then preparing appropriately. There are some great managed print services out there that address these challenges, but they may offer more service features than you actually want or can afford. What's needed is a targeted service that focuses solely on the supplies side of printing.

Solution at a glance

Now there's an HP Managed Print Services (MPS) offer for organizations that require a simple, reliable way to acquire ink, toner, bonding agent, print heads, image drum kits and their associated cleaners. HP Managed Supplies Delivery allows your organization to automatically receive supplies just in time. This eliminates the need to maintain surplus inventories and helps your organization spend less on storage, cut the waste and focus on taking care of business versus managing supplies.
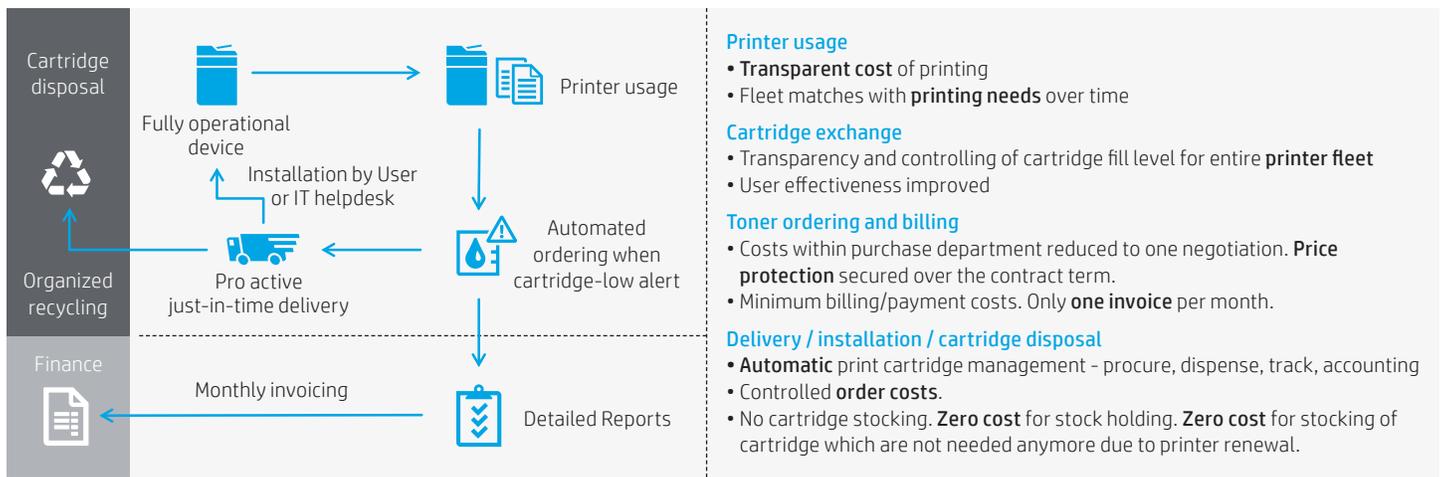

HP Managed Print Services

When it comes to choosing a managed print service, an organization needs choices. HP MPS offers a variety of contracts and options that help organizations manage, improve and optimize their print environment. HP MPS spans the entire print infrastructure, from qualified HP devices, software and supplies to support, services and solutions for office, production and commercial print environments.

HP Managed Supplies Delivery

The HP Managed Supplies Delivery takes all the benefits of a managed print service and applies them to a simple supplies-specific service for qualified HP devices. You get only the amount of service you require, which is ideal for organizations challenged with effectively managing their imaging and printing environments and all the associated costs. HP Managed Supplies Delivery helps cut costs by reducing storage space expenses, duplicate orders of ink and toner, and orders for devices no longer in the fleet. Plus, you'll realize increased productivity by always having the ink and toner to print when and where it's needed.

It's difficult to fully manage the efficiency and cost effectiveness of your printing and imaging environment without clearly understanding how print assets are used across your organization. That's why you also receive HP Remote Monitoring as part of your HP Managed Supplies Delivery. This proven method for efficiently and securely collecting and reporting usage data enables you to make informed decisions about your organization's printing and imaging environment.
