BRING YOUR DIGITAL WORLD TO LIFE

HP Upline Service

A better place for your PC files to live

So much of your world is digital today. Snapshots. Videos. Music. Homework. Recipes. Holiday cards. Household documents of all kinds. You name it. But there's a great big world outside your PC: Friends and family. Your accountant. The swim team. Your book club.

Wouldn't it be great if you could share your digital world with them? But sending big files through email can be a hassle. And keeping blogs or websites up to date takes time that's hard to find these days.

So, let HP simplify your digital life—with the HP Upline service. Suddenly, sharing snapshots is, well, a snap. Keeping up the family blog won't bog you down. Showing Aunt Elsie the video of your kid's birthday party—that's a piece of cake.

Upline gives all your files an easy and more secure place to live—so you can get to them any time you want, share them with whoever you want, and always know they're backed up with the built-in automatic backup capability.

Get to your files anywhere, any time

With the HP Upline service, your precious memories, important household files, favorite music, and more are all just an Internet connection away. That puts your whole digital world right at your fingertips on the go. It also means friends and family near and far can see your files in just a few simple steps. And if you ever have a problem with your PC, there's nothing to worry about—Upline has your files backed up so you can get them all back once your PC is working again.

Upline couldn't be easier. When you subscribe to the service, it searches your computer for all your important files—you tell Upline what you want to include. Then it copies your files onto HP's secure Upline servers, using the most advanced security technology to keep unwanted eyes off your information while it's transmitted and once it's stored. Best of all, your information is now in a place where you can access, share, and publish your files from any Internet connected PC any time.

With HP Upline, your precious memories, favorite music, and important household files have a secure place to live, safe from loss or damage with the built-in automatic backup capabilities.

Keep in touch

With Upline, now you can keep in touch with your digital world like never before—share files, publish them, access them whether you're on vacation, over at the neighbor's, down visiting family, or sitting at home. Upline lets you get to your account from any Internet-enabled PC using your login and password and easily work with any of your files stored online.

Sharing files is just as easy—simply select the files you want to share, select the recipients, and press the share button. Your recipients get a standard email message with an embedded link to the files that you've shared and they can view or download files with a single click. Any time you make a change to the master file, the changes are automatically reflected in the shared files so everyone has the latest version. For added security, you can password-protect shared files so only the people you trust gain access. And you can also limit the amount of time others have access to your files.

You want to put a file out on the Internet so the whole world can see it? No problem. Upline lets you publish files by simply creating a web address and post it on websites, blogs, or anywhere you communicate. Because Upline is an extension of your own PC, any changes you make to the original file are also made to the published file. That makes Upline ideal for publishing changing information like sports schedules or club meeting times.

Protect your precious memories

Ever wonder what you'd do if all your photos and music were suddenly lost or destroyed. A spilled cup of coffee could ruin your notebook PC, or a devastating fire might destroy every PC in your house. No worries. With Upline, your files are protected thanks to automated backup that you just set and forget.

Just tell Upline what files you want protected and the service automatically and continuously backs them up to our online storage site. In most cases, the backup process will run without you doing a thing. And relax—because we use the latest security technologies for your files in transit and in storage.

You want to also store your files at home or on a disc for mom? The Upline local backup feature lets you save files to a CD, DVD, thumb drive, and other devices with just the click of a mouse.

Simplify your digital life

Let's face it, your time is precious—and so are your digital memories. That's what makes Upline the perfect addition to home computing. You can control what files get shared, published, or backed up for any of the PCs in your house, without fiddling around with complicated software programs. Our simple web service makes it easy.

Upline also makes your life easier anytime you upgrade your PC. The Upline data migration service lets you transfer all your photos, music, videos, and other files to our Upline servers while your new PC is set up, then copy everything back in a flash. It's the best way to expand your digital world—and bring all your friends and family closer together. All for just a few dollars each month.
