HP Records Processing Solution for Law Enforcement

Adjusting to growing citizen service level requirements while keeping a handle on paperwork is increasingly challenging for law enforcement. How do agencies keep officers in the field where they're needed when field reports, accident summaries and/or inmate records are piling up at their desks? And how do they help ensure paperwork—often vital to public safety—is easy to distribute, archive and retrieve when it's sitting in disjointed locations such as filing cabinets, records warehouses, desktop PCs and storage servers? Many are turning to HP Records Processing Solution for Law Enforcement to streamline document management.

What if you could...

Reduce time and money spent managing field reports, accident summaries or inmate records?

Increase the amount of time officers spend in the field and decrease the time spent managing documents?

Share scanned documents instantly with other associates, departments or organizations right at your HP MFP?

Protect documents with device-prompted authentication requirements?

Mitigate the risk of lost or misplaced documents and the costs of reworking those documents?

That's alternative thinking about printing.

Solution at a glance

HP Records Processing Solution for Law Enforcement is an efficient document management solution that captures, indexes and validates scanned documents and then automatically distributes and/or archives them via defined workflows. The solution helps law enforcement agencies:

- Consolidate document copying, scanning, distributing, archiving and printing functions with secure, networked HP multifunction printers (MFPs)
- Send documents to select officers and associates via custom groups—choose groups right from the HP MFP's front panel
- Control and secure document sending and archiving functions by requiring user authentication at HP MFP front panel
- Automate records processing to improve efficiency, lower costs and put officers back in the field faster
- Centralize document archiving and retrieval to standardize how everyone stores and accesses documents

The average law enforcement agency processes tens of thousands of documents annually. With those numbers, every organization should consider automated records processing technology. The current trend is to streamline paper-based processes by implementing document management technology and practices that protect, deliver and store data more effectively. A document management solution is an IT enhancement that directly and positively affects department budgets, keeps officers in the field longer and speeds citizen service.
