Sint-Lutgardis Mol printing fleet halves total cost of ownership

HP LaserJet and PageWide Pro technology replaces outdated and inefficient estate

Sint-Lutgardis Mol is a Catholic secondary school located in the Belgian town of Mol. The school needed an efficient and secure printing system to cater for its pupils and staff. By getting rid of its central print room and creating a network of smaller, decentralised printers, the school has created a modern, flexible and efficient approach to print.

The school relied on one large machine in a central print room to print documents run by an operator
To get copies of documents, teachers needed to hand printing assignments to the operator working in the central print room

Printer can be programmed to switch off when inactive

“One of the reasons Sint-Lutgardis Mol chose the HP LaserJet Enterprise M605x is its low print cost. For example, our students and staff can decide how much toner they want to use, which reduces costs even further thanks to the HP Level Pay system.”

“The big advantage of these printers is their user-friendliness; students and teachers can have confidence that they can go to the print room to print and scan documents without having to worry about having their jobs stuck in a queue or waiting in one themselves. Generally, self-service is a lot faster.”
