Executive Biography

Christina Lowery
CEO, Girl Rising

Christina is passionate about narrative storytelling as an engine of social awareness. She has been with Girl Rising since its inception in 2009. Christina is responsible for the strategy and execution of Girl Rising’s expanding work around the globe including the production of new media, implementation of GR’s on the ground programs and ongoing engagement with public and private sector partners, foundations, media partners, educators, and grassroots supporters.

Prior to becoming CEO, Christina was Girl Rising’s Managing Director and the Supervising Producer of the original Girl Rising film. Her passion for storytelling is founded upon decades of experience in documentary film and television, having contributed to, produced, researched and/or overseen films for CNN, ABC, Bill Moyers, Martin Scorsese and Robert Deniro, among many others. She holds a B.A. in Comparative Literature from Brown University and a Masters in International Community Planning from the University of Texas, Austin. She lives in New York’s Hudson River Valley with her husband and three children.
