

Executive Biography

Richard Archdeacon

Head of Security Strategy, HP Enterprise Security Services
Hewlett-Packard Company

---

Richard Archdeacon is a member of the Office of Strategy and Technology within HP Enterprise Security Services. He leads research and innovation into new strategic security services for clients in all major sectors.

Archdeacon has 25 years' experience in consulting at a senior level with major corporations across Europe, the Middle East and the U.S. and prior to joining HP Enterprise Security Services, was a consultant to various organisations including ENISA and on assignments in the Middle East with a major oil company and a government department.

Archdeacon was previously with the security vendor Symantec for several years during which he held a number of roles including leading the consulting and technical services team for Northern Europe and finally EMEA Head of Innovation.

He has been on the board of advisory bodies such as IAAC and is currently a member of the Accreditation Committee of the IISP. Archdeacon is a qualified lawyer and holds an MBA from Cranfield University.